TWO BEST PRACTICES

VIP –VALUE INDUCING PRACTICE

GOAL

To induce, nourish value systems in students.

PRACTICE

General assembly is conducted on the first Monday of every month. Students' council convene the assembly meeting. Departments take turn in conducting the events of the meeting. Though the main objective of the assembly is to disseminate important announcements (achievements by the staff and students) yet, it was decided to capitalize the opportunity for the benefit of our students. The IQAC on its part, through one of its members give a thought provoking speech. Under the auspices of Honor's club, some interesting tips for communicating in English is shared by the staff of the English department. The Enviro club, the Matrix club, the Health club, the department of Physics and Plant Biology & Plant Biotechnology extend valuable facts in their respective domain. Thought for the day and a verse from Thirukkural adds glory to the value scheme. Ultimately, the students begin the month with a positive note.

IMPACT

This practice has given scope for students- audience to listen to some of the values in unison. Though only few students get opportunity to say these facts, their friends help them with ideas. Thus students develop team building spirit. Students are provided with a platform to experiment and experience public speaking.

LGP- LEARNING THROUGH GROUP PROJECTS

GOAL

To develop learner centric approach among students through peer centric learning.

PRACTICE

The groups are classified in such a way that each group comprises of high to low performers, so that the high performer would complement the low performer and help improve their competency level. This will enable the group to showcase better. It is observed that the group project helps the individual student to contribute her understanding of the knowledge as a part. This brings the awareness of the strength and weaknesses of her peer and mutually rise up to the occasion to prove that her group is the best. In this process, the students develop problem solving skills and analytical ability.

IMPACT

Peer centric learning through group projects is found to have improved participation, retention of knowledge, development of problem solving ability, analytical ability and critical thinking ability. Above all students perform best in a group as there is team work involved.
